How to pair xr2 remote to motorola cable box

It's easy to pair your Comcast remote with a new TV Box or Flex streaming device. This allows you to control the streaming device or TV Box up to 50ft away, which helps if it is in another room or in an entertainment center. Keep in mind that you can only control the devices that are paired with your remote.If you would like to know how to connect your Comcast (Xfinity) remote to a new box, this article can help. There is a lot of information below about connecting new remotes and more.How to Pair Your Comcast Remote with a New TV Box or Streaming DeviceYou can pair your Comcast remote with your Flex streaming devices and Xfinity X1 Boxes to control a streaming device or TV Box even when it is not in sight. This means that your Flex streaming device or Xfinity X1 Box can be in another room or in an entertainment center that is up to 50ft away. You can find the model number of your Comcast remote inside the remote's battery compartment or on the back panel.Note: Comcast remotes can be paired with one streaming device or TV Box at a time. For example, once you have paired your remote with a streaming device or TV Box, it will not work with another streaming device or TV Box until it is paired with them. Click here to have a customer support agent walk you through the process or try the steps below.Pairing Your Comcast Remote with a Setup ButtonThe following instructions only apply to remote models: XR2, XR5, and an XR11 Voice Remote.Start by ensuring there are batteries in your remote.Turn your streaming device or TV Box, and your TV, on.Set your TV input to the same one connected to your streaming device or TV Box.Press and hold the "Setup" button on the remote until the LED, located on the top, switches from red to green.Press the "Xfinity" button on your remote.
